ANNOUNCING the book release of HOLLOWING SCREAMS by Barbara Watkins!

NOW AVAILABLE THROUGH AMAZON.COM AND THE PUBLISHER! Within two to four weeks you may also order through other Internet bookstores as well as your favorite chain or neighborhood booksellers. Also now available in ebook format through Kindle and through Smashwords.com for all other digital reader devices.

A story about the TERROR of being thrust into a world in which time cannot be calculated, distance cannot be measured, and true existence is questionable and incomprehensible. In 1971, a mysterious stranger warned a small community of impending doom. She prophesied that if they ignored her warnings they would experience a chain of devastating events. The outcome of their fate would hang on whether or not they chose to believe in something not scientifically validated. Is it safe to say that unexplained phenomenon exists? If you asked the people of Patton, they would say . . . “Of course it does and its name is Lola.”

Living in Sikeston MO, married to childhood sweetheart Jim, and writing in the genre of supernatural/psychological thrillers, Barbara Watkins loves to evoke a sense of terror and fright in her readers. In 2005 her novella, ‘Behind the Red Door’ caught the attention of Escape Artists Studio, and in return they requested the manuscript for review. Her dream of seeing her work adapted to film is in the works. Currently she is working on yet another psychological thriller and promises her readers won’t be disappointed.
